Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-7, 13-23, drawn to methods of predicting the resistance of a pathogen to a therapeutic agent using a trained neural network, and the neural network itself, classified in class 706, subclass 2 and class 700, subclass 48.
- II. Claims 8-12, drawn to methods of predicting the resistance of a disease to a therapeutic agent, classified in class 706, subclass 13.
- III. Claims 23-28, drawn to methods of designing a therapeutic agent to treat a disease or pathogen, classified in class 706, subclass 31.
- IV. Claim 29, drawn to a method of predicting the probability that an individual would develop a disease, classified in class 706, subclass 21.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are independent and distinct from each other, because the intents of the methods, and the steps required for those methods are not the same. The neural networks would need to be trained on differing data, as to whether the one was predicting resistance to a pathogen such as a bacteria or virus, in comparison to using patients own genetic data for predicting resistance to a disease treating agent. The data analyzed is different in each method, and requires very different trained networks for implementation of each method.

Inventions I/ II and III are independent and distinct from one another as the methods for designing a therapeutic agent comprise differing steps, differing data, and use differently trained neural networks and other instructions needed to design a therapeutic agent. The searches for this group would not be substantially co-extensive in scope and would pose an undue burden on the examiner if not restricted.

Invention IV is independent and distinct from each other group, as it is drawn to a method having differing steps, using differing data, to reach a differing goal. The predicting of the development of a disease requires particular data sets and training sets not required for any other group, and would use a very different algorithm or trained network to carry out the method with any precision. The search for this invention would not be substantially co-extensive in scope with any other method, and would pose an undue burden upon the examiner if not restricted.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a petition under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
